PRESIDENT'S REPORT LION BARRY SIMMS

*HAPPY NEW YEAR TO ALL MEMBERS
Presidents Half Yearly Report*

HAPPY

I accepted the position of President of our club with some concerns, after being a President of a club before where, I was confronted with a very disorganised group with some members having their own goals and agendas which clashed with the healthy organisation of a club.

The members of The Lions Club of Mandurah have proven to me to be a group of people who can work closely as a team, in harmony to achieve outstanding goals.

Some of the goals achieved and continuing to achieve include a car delivered to Tyson, ongoing recycling projects, a donation to Kitty and Bryce Bowden, Halls Head Swap Meet and sausage sizzle, Christmas Cake sales and raffles, Santa visits and deliveries, Bunnings sausage sizzles, ongoing club house rental and maintenance, club administration (Secretary and Treasurer) and acceptance of Mandurah XYY Syndrome Club Branch, just to name a few.

I am proud to be a member of The Lions Club of Mandurah and look forward to serving with you for the forthcoming six months as your President and as a fellow member into the future.

President Barry Simms

1ST VICE PRESIDENT'S REPORT LION PAUL CARROTTS

Remember it is our post Christmas celebration at our meeting on the 11th January 2022 to be held at the Mandurah Offshore Fishing Club, $40.00 per head.

Members have you given thought about nominating for club office positions for the coming year 2022 / 2023. So for a rewarding experience and you haven't served on the Board before, give it a try you won't be disappointed. Nomination Night 22/02/22 Election Night 22/03/22

We have some minor work, from kitchen inspection by City of Mandurah inspectors. Paint lifting near dish washer to be fixed, and we need to patch the hole in the wall in hall.

IMPORTANT NOTICE

The equipment trailer has a set of batteries and a charger to supply power to the Engel refrigerators and when the trailer is housed in the shed an extension lead is fed into the trailer to recharge the batteries.

This lead runs over sharp edges causing damage to the lead and causing a very high potential risk of electrocution to the users.

To eliminate this potential risk a caravan power inlet plug has been installed at the front of the trailer and a power outlet installed inside the trailer so In future, when removing or returning the trailer please use the caravan inlet plug and lead provided.

A power outlet has now been installed above the trailer on the roof, (see photo left) to eliminate the use of an extension lead being run from other power outlets.

A second power outlet has also been installed to provide power to the refrigerators.

This will eliminate extension leads and power boards that we currently used.

These works have now reduced the fire and safety risks and are necessary to ensure we work in a healthy and safe environment.

President Barry Simms

Lions, please contact me if any Lions or Lions partners are ill or in hospital so as I can followup with them on behalf of the Club.

This hit home for me.

When a flashlight grows dim or quits working, do you just throw it away? Of course not. You change the batteries. ♡. When a person messes up or finds themselves in a dark place, do you cast them aside? Of course not! You help them change their batteries. Some need AA...attention and affection; some need AAA...attention, affection, and acceptance; some need C....compassion; some need D...direction. And if they still don't seem to shine...simply sit with them quietly and share your light. ♡

Santa Visits 2021

The Santa Visit program commenced late October with an email sent to all Daycare Centres on our register offering a Santa for their end of year party..

Twelve centres took up our offer. The offers were then confirmed and Santas were called for, my thanks to the Five Lions who responded and nominated where they would like to visit.

One event called for us to conduct a sausage sizzle. This was done on a fixed price basis. Income, from both the Santa Visits and from the one Sausage Sizzle. netted the club a substantial reward. IPP Lion John Osborne

3RD VICE PRESIDENT'S REPORT LION DES McLEAN MBE

Christmas has always held a fascination for me, and this year while doing my Santa work, I found a way to not, disappoint the kids.

The first little girl came up to me, to allow Mum to take photographs, and once she was settled, I asked her, "Have you been a good girl?", "Yes" was her quick reply. So then I asked, "What would you like me to bring you, for Christmas?", the little girl replied "a baby doll", I glanced at Mum, who gives me the nod and I continued, "I think I will have one on the sleigh for you.

This was working just fine until a precocious young Six year old boy, climbs on my knee and cupping both hands to my ear, he whispers, "A remote control". Oh a remote control, I repeated. Mum gives me the nod then I put my foot in it, "Is it for a car?", I asked, and he answers, sternly, "No it's for a boat". Oh well I had a 90% success rate

This year, I have been Santa five times, I had six Christmas light trips including our friend, Lion Bluey Prendergast and the ladies from Bridgetown Lions Club.

To you all, I hope you had a great Christmas and enjoyed, a Happy and Safe New Year. Be careful on the roads there are too many drunks. Drive on the footpath instead, Ho Ho, Ho

CHRISTMAS CAKE PROJECT

Thank you, to all Lions members and partners who made Christmas cake sales a success this year

A successful six days was held selling Christmas cakes at the MANDURAH FORUM Monday 6th December to Saturday 11th December 2021 Followed by seven days at BUNNINGS GREENFIELDS on Sunday 12th December to Sunday 17th December, 2021. It was then decided to have cake sales at the LAKELANDS SHOPPING CENTRE from the 18th December 2021 to the 20th December 2021.

Christmas Cake sales were steady on most days with us selling, 700,1.5k, 805 1.0k, cakes and 215 puddings, which has brought substantial amount of funds, back to the Club.

“On the first day of Cake Sales, Traditional Foods sent to me
700 Big Cakes --- 840 Small cakes --- 240 Puddings annnd 225 little Caakes.

On the fifteenth day of cakes sales, all that was left to see
Was 35 small cakes, 25 puddings annnd 10 little cakes for me.”

We had six days of selling at the Mandurah Forum, six days at Bunnings Greenfields and finishing off with three days at Lakelands Shopping Centre. The Forum was the most successful period with daily cake sale double Bunnings and Lakelands.

Thank you to the businesses who supported us, Independent Timbers, Peel Pharmacy, Mandurah Central Pharmacy, Mandurah Discount Drug Store, Highgrove Bathrooms, Apia, Mandurah Bowling Club, The RSL, Bowra and O’Dea and the Senior Centre.

My thanks to the 25 members who participate in the cake sales at all venues where over half of the cake sales were accounted for, to the members who looked after the sales at the local businesses and thanks to those members who generated sales amongst family and friends.

The decorated cake raffle, which is in its second year, generated further substantial funds for the club in ticket sales and realised a tidy a profit from the six cakes that were raffled. it was again another hit with the club and our thanks must go to the Cake Decorating Ladies for icing the cakes, each one were beautifully done.

QUICK ONLINE SECURITY TIPS

Whilst technology can be a great tool for all of us, it is important to be aware of the many scams that can be found online. These emails are indiscriminate and are becoming increasingly clever and sophisticated. We've collated some tips and tricks to keep yourself safe online and help you identify some of the common scams.

Online Safety Tips

- Protect your computer by purchasing and installing a good quality malware/virus protection program.
- Use complex passwords to make it difficult for hackers to guess. Make sure you don't use the same password for everything, instead write them down on a piece of paper and keep it somewhere safe. Alternatively, use a reputable password manager application. Some tips on creating a strong password can be found here: <https://www.cyber.gov.au/acsc/view-all-content/publications/creating-strong-passphrases>
- Never provide personal information via email (address, passwords, date of birth, etc.). With hacking being so prevalent, it's impossible to know where this information could end up. If you receive an email requesting these details and it is a business/someone that you know, give them a call and provide the information over the phone, instead. If you don't recognise the sender, delete the email immediately.
- Do not open any attachments or links unless you know who is sending it and you are expecting it. This is one of the most common ways that viruses can infect your computer. Hackers are very clever and can replicate email addresses, meaning that a virus may be enclosed in an attachment that looks like it is coming from a family member. Consider every link in an e-mail as potentially risky. For example, if you receive an e-mail from your bank asking you to click a link, go to your bank website instead, and find that link.
- Be alert to unusual e-mails. Think about what you know about the sender, is the e-mail unusual or unexpected? If you're unsure about it, don't reply. Give them a call or open 'new message' and send an email to the sender using a known email address.
- Do not pay any bills that you cannot independently verify as legitimate, or if you don't remember receiving the service. Do not email/phone the provider using the information provided in the suspect email, as it may be fake. Instead, find the correct contact details online to verify the bill.
- Never make bank transfers, particularly for large amounts, based on account numbers and BSB numbers sent by e-mail. E-mails can be forged. Always verify the account details over the phone.
- Learn to check e-mail addresses for hidden code. Remember the name you read may not be the destination of the e-mail.
- If you get an e-mail from someone you know requesting money, ring the sender, or their friends and family, to independently verify their status before sending any money.

Common Scams <https://www.scamwatch.gov.au/types-of-scams>

• Attempts to gain your personal information

Scammers are clever and use sneaky tactics, such as hacking or phishing, to get your personal details which they can then use to commit fraudulent activities or identity theft.

• Dating and Romance

Scammers create a fake online dating profile and convince vulnerable people to send them money.

• Remote access scams

Scammers will pose as IT specialists and convince you that there's an error with your computer. They will attempt to gain remote access to your computer in order to "fix the problem" and steal your credit card details. Never give an unsolicited caller remote access to your device.

• Unexpected prize and lottery scams

If you receive an email or text advising you you've won a large amount of money that sounds too good to be true, it almost certainly is. Scammers will attempt to convince you to give them money or personal information in order to receive a prize that doesn't exist.

• Sick friend scam

Scammers pose as a sick friend of yours and send you an email requesting financial assistance.

• Missed Delivery scam

Scammers contact you via text/email advising you that you've missed a delivery. They will ask you to click on a link to organise an alternate delivery time. Clicking on this link will download malicious software to your phone.

• False billing

You receive an email with a bill that looks legitimate. The account will have false payment details or are for services that you have not received.

Hackers and scammers are increasingly becoming more clever and diverse with their scams. If you believe you have been scammed, lodge a report with the ACCC (Australian Competition and Consumer Commission), here.

Stay suspicious and keep yourself informed <https://www.scamwatch.gov.au/>.

CAMP QUOKKA T1D Youth Camp for 15-18 year olds, scheduled to be held on 25th September to 1st October 2023.

Our Lions Club of District 201W2 has launched its campaign to raise funds for the running of the Lions Camp Quokka T1D Youth Camp for 15-18 year olds, which is scheduled to be held on 25th September to 1st October 2023.

Camp Quokka is an innovative and growing network of community-based diabetes support centres that come together and provide support, coping skills, and education, at no charge to individuals and family members living with Type 1 and 2 diabetes and other related medical conditions. No medical referrals are required and professional caregivers are also welcomed. The camp attracts participants from across Western Australia and border access permitting, will include participants from inter-state and potentially overseas.

Sponsorship is $100 per youth or as many as your Club would like to sponsor. Lions National Coordinator for Diabetes, Pat Mills who has advised us that any money we receive for Camp Quokka will be given to the District Treasurer who will look after all monies in the Diabetes Budget under Diabetes Camps for when the camp eventuates. You can sponsor any number of young adults who will go on camp. Will know more after the Council of Governors meet in January when we can go ahead with the camp.

On behalf of the Committee for Camp Quokka we would like to thank those Clubs who have already sent money in to sponsor youth for the Camp.

Let's all get on board and make this the most memorable, successful and fun Camp that we as Lions know how too.

A Project initiated by the Lions Club Of Coogee in NSW

Spare a thought for all Health Care Workers

Coogee Lions Club, NSW, volunteers are working closely with Prince of Wales Hospital in Sydney to recognise and reward nurses in the COVID ward on a weekly basis.

How lucky are we so far, here in Western Australia

Frontline health staff are working under extreme conditions right now, but local Lions volunteers are on a mission to recognise our COVID-19 Healthcare Heroes and they are asking for the community's help!

Healthcare Heroes will be acknowledged for their hard work and will each be presented with a special certificate of thanks and a $50 shopping voucher.

Coogee Lions Club Co-President Sari-Elle Kraemer says the project is a wonderful way for the community to come together and show healthcare workers how much they are appreciated at this difficult time.

“Lions are local volunteers passionate about doing what we can to help others and make a difference in the community. Right now, we’re on a mission to recognise the hardworking frontline healthcare workers who are going above and beyond to look after the community during COVID-19.”

“Many are working longer and more frequent shifts in physically challenging environments, having to perform their role in double layered Personal Protective Equipment and endure the stress and trauma of increasing case numbers.”

Have a Laugh 😂

Lambs to the left of me. Mutton to the right. Here I am. Stuck in the middle with ewe. 🐑🐑😬

It was a dark and stormy night. Bob could barely see the road in front of the car. Suddenly, the car skids out of control! Bob attempts to control the car, but to no avail! The car swerves and smashes into a tree.

Moments later, Bob shakes his head to clear the fog. Dazed, he looks over at the passenger seat and sees his wife unconscious, with her head bleeding! Despite the rain and unfamiliar countryside, Bob knows he has to get her medical assistance.

Bob carefully picks his wife up and begins trudging down the road. After a short while, he sees a light. He heads towards the light which is coming from a large, old house.

He approaches the door and knocks. A minute passes and a small, hunched old man opens the door. Bob immediately blurts, "Hello, my name is Bob Hill, and this is my wife, Betty. We've been in a terrible accident and my wife and I have been seriously hurt. Can I please use your phone?"

"I'm sorry," replied the hunchback, "but we don't have a phone. But my master is a doctor, come in, and I will get him!" Bob brings his wife in.

After short time an older man comes down the stairs. "I'm afraid my assistant may have misled you. I am not a medical doctor; I am a scientist.. However, it is many miles to the nearest clinic, and I have had a basic medical training. I will see what I can do. Igor, bring them down to the laboratory." With that, Igor picks up Betty and carries her downstairs, with Bob following closely. Igor places Betty on a table in the lab. Bob collapses from exhaustion and his own injuries, so Igor places Bob on an adjoining table.

After a brief examination, Igor's master looks worried. "Things are serious, Igor. Prepare a transfusion" Igor and his master work feverishly, but to no avail. Bob and Betty Hill both passed away.

The Hills' deaths upset Igor's master greatly, and wearily, he climbs the steps to his conservatory, which houses his grand piano. For it is here that he has always found solace. He begins to play, and a stirring, almost haunting melody fills the house.

Meanwhile, Igor is still in the lab tidying up. His eyes catch movement, and he notices the fingers on Betty's hand twitch, keeping time to the haunting piano music. Stunned, he watches as Bob's arm begins to rise, marking the beat! He is further amazed as Betty AND Bob both sit up straight!

Unable to contain himself, he dashes up the stairs to the conservatory. He bursts in and shouts to his master, "Master, Master, the Hills are alive with sound of music!"

THE STORY OF MELVIN JONES 13/1/1879 - 1/6/1961

The Founder of Lions International was born at Fort Thomas, Arizona on January 13, 1879. His father was Captain Calvin Jones of the United States Army, commanding a troop of scouts under General Nelson Miles - the famed Indian fighter. His mother was the former Lydia M. Gibler, who bore and nurtured her infant son under the constant threat of Indian raids. Fort Thomas was an outpost on the Gila River between the Santa Teresa and Gila Mountains, a short forty miles from the Apache stronghold. Only three years before Melvin's birth, a band of Sioux Indians had surrounded and massacred General Custer's band of scouts in Montana (now in Arizona). The Apaches were making their last stand against the white man's encroachment. Under Cochise, a great war leader, and later Chief Geronimo, a cruel and brilliant fighter, they slashed viciously at the white man's expanding frontiers, with frequent massacres of both whites and Indians. Melvin's father was in the thick of fighting until 1886, when Melvin was a lad of seven. Then Geronimo was captured and banished to an Indian reservation in Oklahoma, and the last vestige of the red man's resistance collapsed. Melvin's boyhood memories were a melange of horses and blue-cad troopers, bugles and war cries, wagon trains, gaunt settlers and dust. Most modern kids, thrilled by the fake cowboys-and-Indians fare on television, would consider it a life of glamour. Not Melvin, he vaguely remembered being boyishly happy when his father was transferred to a new post in the North, and his mother cried tears of happiness when she heard the news.

The Jones family made stops at St. Louis and Quincy Illinois, and Melvin attended public schools in both cities. It was a sort of Army life, catch-as-catch-can education. As he grew to young manhood, Melvin filled it out with a course in the Union Business College and a smattering of law at Chaddock College in Quincy. The excitement and confusion of his early boyhood was reflected in his indecision, "I couldn't decide whether to be a lawyer or a tenor, my voice had made me pretty popular in school". But when he moved to Chicago in his twenties, he gave up both law and music, and took a position in the insurance agency of Johnson and Higgins. The young man was intelligent and alert - by 1913 he was sole owner of the Melvin Jones Insurance Agency, and was on his way. But prior to that in 1909, he met, wooed and married a pretty Chicago girl who was also on her way to becoming one of the great woman golfers of her day. She was Rose Amanda Freeman, who climaxed a spectacular golfing career by winning the National Women's Open Golf title at Pinehurst, North Carolina in 1925. "I was perhaps the first golf widower on record", Melvin often said, but didn't mean it, because his wife was a constant helpmate and strong right arm in his early career.

One day, when Melvin Jones was sitting in his insurance office contemplating life as a successful insurance salesman at age 33, a business acquaintance invited him to lunch, "to meet some of the boys". The "boys" turned out to be members of the Business Circle of Chicago, holding their, weekly luncheon in the old Boston Oyster House They welcomed this "go-getting" young man and made him feel at home. The Business Circle, like hundreds of similar business men's clubs throughout the country, was composed of leaders in many fields of trade and commerce. Its slogan, as one surviving member said, was "You scratch my back and I'll scratch yours." The purpose was business pure and simple - the members patronised each other, boosted each other's services or products, and met solely, for the purpose, of advancing their own interests. Young Jones was invited to join, and he did. It was quite a privilege to belong, but to this enthusiastic young man it was also a challenge. He used his salesmanship to vitalise and increase the Business Circle's membership, he introduced new ideas into the club's operation. In 1915, when one of the older members was nominated for the presidency, he declined to run unless Melvin Jones was elected secretary. They both got the positions.

In his work as secretary of the Circle, young Jones began to get the vague feeling that something was wrong with this picture. Here were almost two hundred successful, influential business men joined in a club, which if its potential were realised, could have a great group influence for good in its community. Instead, they met, dined and patted each other on the back, counting it a good day when they exchanged profitable orders. In many other cities and in Chicago too, other groups of men were doing the same thing.

Why, asked Melvin Jones, couldn't this selfish group power be directed to unselfish service in other areas of community life? "You're working yourself to death for somebody else without pay" his wife said, watching the business of the Circle encroach upon the time of the Jones Insurance Agency and its owner. "Maybe I'm finding out that you don't get very far unless you start doing something for somebody else, and it wouldn't hurt some of those clubs like the Circle to get wise" replied her husband. Pursuing his thought of group action, Melvin began, in 1916 to write letters to other clubs, feeling them out on the question of forming a national association. His insurance office became campaign headquarters. He and Mrs. Jones worked many nights on a flood of question-and-answer correspondence. Some of the replies were encouraging, many were of the "mind your own business and we'll mind ours" variety. But out of the welter of words came growing enthusiasm for a new idea in club service and in that little office, on those nights in 1916, the spirit of Lionism, if not the face of it, was born. Finally, with a background of information and encouragement received, from correspondence, visits to other clubs and long conferences with associates, Melvin Jones broached the idea of affiliation with membership of the Business Circle. At the end of the year the Circle's directors approved the idea, leaving the mechanics of the plan up to their secretary.

In June, 1917, at the invitation of Jones, twenty delegates representing twenty-seven clubs from various parts of the United States met in the East room of Chicago Hotel LaSalle. Despite the wide range of interests and personalities involved, the meeting went smoothly and the consensus favoured the formation of an association. Only when the name for the new group came up did the neck hairs begin to bristle. Represented were Optimists, Reciprocity Clubs, the Wheels, the Concordia Club of Omaha, the Business and Professional Men of St. Paul, the Cirgonians of Los Angeles, the Vortex group from St Louis and Detroit, and the Lions Clubs of Indiana and they were not about to become stepchildren without a struggle. Melvin Jones had anticipated this, and had done some cloakroom campaigning, aided by members of the Business Circle, who were backing their secretary's favourite, the Lions. Melvin had done considerable research into legend, heraldry and zoology, and was convinced that the Lion stood for courage, strength, fidelity and vital action. On a secret ballot, it was tentatively decided to call the new group the "Association of Lions Clubs," and after the Optimists walked out in a huff, the meeting adjourned. Certainly, the nucleus of Lionism was born at this meeting, and the groundwork laid for an organisation which was to become the largest and most effective fellowship of service-minded men in the history of the world. Much of the organisation remained to be perfected at the first convention to be held in Dallas Texas 8-9-10 October 1917, and at the second convention at St. Louis in August of 1918. No attempt is made here to record the details of the childhood of Lions International. The adoption of an emblem, the official colours, the Code of Ethics and Objects and a strong Constitution came later. But one fact stands out like a beacon light in the haze of history, Melvin Jones was the Founder of Lions International, the parent of its plans and purposes, the guide to its great future. He had help from many outstanding men in the years of his leadership - men who must, because of their great number and scope of contribution, be nameless here.

The Association did not become International in fact, until 1920, when the Lions Club of Detroit chartered the Windsor, Ontario Lions Club in Canada. In 1988 - 1989 Lions Clubs were first established in the Eastern Block with several Lions Clubs in Hungary forming a provisional district; the first Lions Club in Poland, the Lions Club of Poznan, Poland; and a Lions Club in Estonia.

Lionism's dedication to aiding the blind grew out of a speech by Helen Keller at the 1925 International Convention in Cedar Point, Ohio, when she challenged the Lions to become "Knights of the Blind in the crusade against darkness." In the words of Charles F. Kettering, "Nothing ever built rose to touch the skies unless some man dreamed that it should, some believed that it could, and some willed that it must." Melvin Jones continued his insurance agency in Chicago until 1926, but long before that it was a side line to his main business of Lionism. Once again Mrs. Jones worked with her husband and a few volunteer aids, to set up the mechanics of a new flourishing organisation. The first balance sheet, presented to the St. Louis convention in 1918, showed a gain of twenty clubs since the Dallas meeting in 1917, for a total of forty-eight. It also showed that the Secretary-Treasurer, named Jones, had received $200 in salary for eleven months of overtime labour.

In 1950, when Lions membership had passed the 400,000 mark, the International Board of Directors conferred up Melvin Jones the title of Secretary-General of Lions International for life. In 1958, the Board changed his official title to Founder and Secretary-General. But perhaps his greatest thrill and reward came in 1953, when after 32 years in cramped quarters in Chicago's McCormick Building, he stood on the stage of the International convention and took part in the dedication of his Association's own magnificent building, on Michigan Avenue in Chicago. It is a living symbol of the world's largest service club organisation, but more than that - a living monument to the Founder. (Lions International Office is now located at 300 West 22nd Street, Chicago, Illinois).

Many honours came to Melvin Jones in his lifetime. In 1939, the Cuban Government decorated him with the National Merit Order of Carlos Manuel de Cespedes, the most cherished of the civilian decorations. In 1945 he was awarded the Order of Merit and Honour of the Cuban Red Cross. In 1932 President Herbert Hoover of the United States named him to a select group of business executives, who attended a White House conference to discuss economic problems. In 1945 Melvin Jones attended a Washington conference for preliminary planning of the United Nations, and in April of that year he was in San Francisco representing Lions International, as a consultant at the historic organisation of the United Nations.

Melvin Jones's office on the first floor of International Headquarters contains hundreds of testimonials to the regard in which he was held by many organisations, and by his fellow Lions. One of the most recent, and most highly treasured, is a scroll presented by then President Finis E. Davis on behalf of Lions International, on the occasion, of Melvin's 82nd birthday party given by the Chicago (Central) Lions Club. That evening the Chicago Central group, which had been the Business Circle when Melvin joined it in 1913, announced the establishment of a perpetual scholarship fund in his honour. Now that the Founder is gone, it has been proposed that his office at International Headquarters be maintained permanently, as a shrine and a memorial to his service in Lionism.

Tragedy came to Melvin Jones in 1954 when Rose Amanda, his wife and helpmate for 45 happy years, passed away. In a letter written shortly after her death he pleaded:

"Hurry, hurry, southern breeze, bring back spring, bring back summer. Bring back the flowers, the birds, my wife...the place I thought was mine is lifeless without them."

When loneliness seemed impossible to contain, a kindly Providence brought into his life a new companion...a charming and cultured neighbour who had been helpful and solicitous in the void of Melvin's sorrow. One June 21, 1956, in a simple but impressive ceremony, Lillian M. Radigan became Mrs. Melvin Jones and to the moment of his death she has been his constant companion, his shield against loneliness and despair, the guardian of his health and comfort. Through her ministrations and solicitude, the summer breeze brought back happiness to his garden, and in so-far as human love could ward off the eternal darkness, she kept him active and happy in the service of his Lions brotherhood.

In November 1959, while travelling to address an anniversary celebration of the Edmonton, Alberta, Canada Lions Club he suffered the first of several slight strokes. Despite the attack, which should have put other 80 year olds to bed, Melvin donned his dinner clothes and acknowledged a standing ovation from a wheel chair. His stubborn refusal to accept the infirmities of old age, constantly amazed his associates at International Headquarters. He appeared regularly at his desk, commuting alone from his suburban home. He missed none of the important events on the hectic schedule of the 1960 International convention, where cheers for the greatest Lion of them all frequently shook the rafters. So, when death came to Melvin Jones, it came not as an intruder, or the winner of a violent struggle, but as an invited guest. The sturdy frame and eager mind, which had inspired and guided a worldwide brotherhood of kindly men to the very pinnacle of world prestige and influence, finally became tired. As the darkness gathered, Melvin took the hand of his beloved wife Lillian, and found eternal peace. Melvin passed away at his home on 1st June, 1961 at the age of 82 years. The "perfect attendance" record of Lion Melvin Jones has been broken by death. He changed the whole concept of club membership with his insistence upon one simple phrase in the constitution of Lions International.

"No club shall hold out as one of its objects financial benefits to its members." His homely philosophy of life, "You can't get very far until you start doing something for somebody else", has become the byword of devoted people of good will, doing something for the needy and the handicapped of the free world the miracle that was only a dream a short yesterday ago and, also lives on in our motto "We Serve." International President Finis E. Davis at the time, wrote: "Once in every generation or era a man appears and in his fleeting hour upon this stage, leaves an indelible imprint upon the lives of his fellow men, and upon generations yet to come. Such a man was Melvin Jones. All over the world today he is the symbol of man's concern for his fellow man." The poet said: "To live in heart's, we leave behind is not to die."

In the heart and memories of the people of Lionism, and in the hearts of countless human beings with restored courage and hope throughout the world, Melvin Jones is not dead, "but trampling steps ahead, and nearer to the end; so that you too once past the bend, shall meet again this kindly friend you fancy dead." He will live forever as the symbol of the great Association he founded, and through its program of unselfish service will multiply his influence for humanitarian service to the end of time.

The International Board of Directors, by proclamation in 1961, proclaimed the date of January 13, the birthday of Founder Melvin Jones, as a day of memory each year throughout the world of Lionism, and that Founders and Rededication month, traditionally observed in January, shall thereafter be designated as Melvin Jones Memorial Month.
